To Whom It May Concern:

It has been twelve years since I first met Ron Sturgeon and I consider him a friend and mentor.

He is a highly energetic individual, creative and quite brilliant. I have always been jealous of Ron's problem solving abilities. Ron has an insatiable appetite for information and has never been shy about searching for solutions from sometimes novel or unconventional perspectives. I love to watch Ron's mind at work. He can dissect a concept to its most basic elements and then rebuild it with his solutions imbedded in the parts. It's almost like he is still working on cars.

He is a uniquely qualified individual with whom I am proud to be associated.

Sincerely,

George Chaggaris
